Artist Statement - A detailed story about the work for viewer's understanding.

The Ka was the part of the soul believed to be life-force of a person that survived after death and in hieroglyphs, is symbolized with arms stretched up or forward. The Ka was a spiritual twin born with every human and lived on after they died. The Ka was confined to an existence in the tomb as a temporary dwelling-house of the soul until it could rejoin the Ba and travel to the afterlife. The Ba was the heavenly spirit and human personality part of the soul believed to be able to fly therefore it is always shown in the form of a bird with a human head carrying the features of the deceased person thus expressing mobility of the soul after death. The Ba kept returning to the tomb until, following the judgement of the earthly life, the Ka and Ba could be reunited in the afterlife.
