Artist Statement - A detailed story about the work for viewer's understanding.

Throughout history, plagues and wars have obliterated societies, economies, and mankind's faith in life itself. In recent decades, disease outbreaks have continually evolved, with each outbreak surmounting the other.

Plague 3021, portrays a prediction based on the mutually dependent relationship between man and technology and how it continues to progress. We have seen humanoid in fiction movies and novels and may not perceive this to be real soon, however, many developments in Artificial intelligence(AI) and robotics science have surpassed our expectations, even in 2021.

While maintaining the theme of covid-19, this piece conveys a contrasting outbreak of humanoids applied for human benefits. It can suggest a hostile acquisition or an alien invasion of some sort. Additionally, this piece is a reminder of the controversies that may result in this hostile acquisition. Unlike the other two pieces (Consumed and The 01), this painting is more refined, and more time was taken in communicating the message above.

The subject in the piece encompasses features from diverse ethnic groups and races, from mesmerizing eyes, a well-defined jawline to an ethnic nose structure. The piece portrays global inclusivity by combining various human features to express something rather unusual yet captivating. . .
