2. Artwork Information (continued)

Artist Statement - A detailed story about the work for viewer's understanding.

The dodo was painted with a certain quirkiness to describe an imaginative scene, inspired from their docile nature. Accounts of the dodo are from ancient mariners, however we tend to trust the subjective telling of humans. The work itself is about the subjectiveness of the accounts on the dodo. Yet used as historical evidence. Their behavior and environment in how and which they lived, are again based on the perspective of others. This is the reason I painted it that way.

The dodoesquein definition, is about a resemblance of the dodo and extrapolation from drawings, paintings and illustrations. Few however, can be justified to have been drawn from a live specimen. The bone is quite certain but the exact beak form or the height is an assumption. Let's imagine a docile bird in a forest with no human contact and impact, thriving.

The issue is that history was written by humans for humans, and this is quite a paradox. As an artist, I have put forward an idealist assumption of the dodo to reflect that what we have been taught can be questioned. We have to ask ourselves the right question and search for truth.
